Usually, when we see a mountain ridge in the distance, we think, "I saw a mountain", whereas in fact what we perceive is just the silhouette of the mountain from a certain angle. Further, the thousands and thousands of trees growing there, the veins entwining the surely millions of leaves, the trees lining the trails our consciousness does not stretch to any of this grasping everything is impossible.

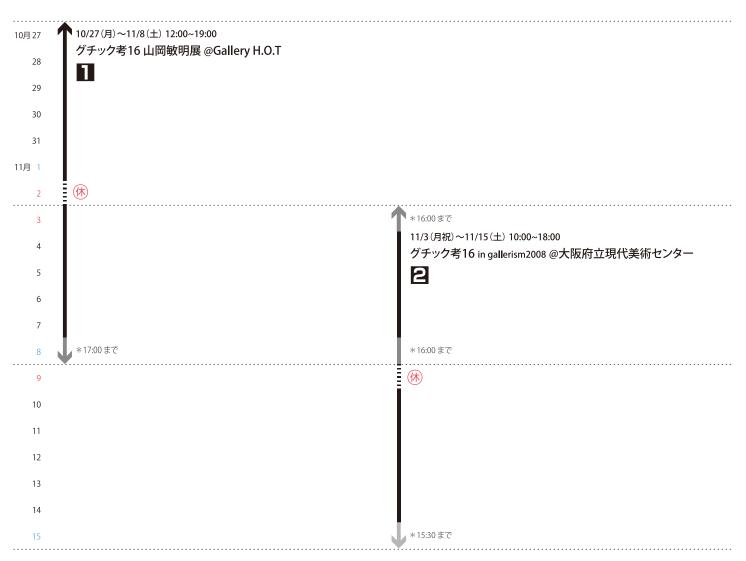

On the one hand, though we are aware of the concept of "eternity", materially we exist as a lump of flesh not even one square meter, one which we cannot maintain for even 200 years. "Gutic" is conceived as like a giant shadow, something cast into the gorge between the vast weltanschauung embraced by all dwarves and the drastically world of reality.

This has been visualized by the ridge line painted on the surfaces, the fragments of models
